Your Privacy

Your personal information is being collected by the Auckland Women Lawyers' Association Incorporated, also known as the AWLA, of PO Box 6568 Wellesley Street Auckland.

The AWLA is collecting your personal information for the purposes of:

- administering your membership;
- maintaining a database of AWLA members (past and present);
- complying with the Incorporated Societies Act 1908;
- providing you with information about AWLA events and activities; and
- sending you the AWLA newsletter, function invitations, membership renewal notices, and other information AWLA considers relevant to you.

Your personal information will be retained for as long as the AWLA determines necessary to facilitate the above purposes.

Under the Incorporated Societies Act 1908 the AWLA is required to maintain a register of members which must include the names, addresses, and date of joining of each member. Therefore that information must be provided (with date of joining being determined annually) before your application can be accepted. The other information requested on this form is useful to facilitate your membership but it is not mandatory to provide it.

The collection and retention of your information is governed by the Privacy Act 1993. You may request access to and correct of the personal information held about you by the AWLA. To do this please contact awla@xtra.co.nz.
